Presents

Roundtable Discussion

“Settling Syrian Refugees in Colorado Springs: Issues, Concerns, and Opportunities”

January 27, 2016

University of Colorado Colorado Springs

University Center, Room 309

2:30-4:00pm

Thank you again for your participation in this invitation-only session to identify foundational issues surrounding the resettlement of Syrian (and Iraqi and Afghani) refugees in our community. The intent of the 90-minute discussion:

- Identify issues, concerns and opportunities
- Consider which community organizations and resources should be involved in future discussions
- Frame questions and initial responses for follow-on community engagements (including the World Affairs Council Town Hall in February)

In the midst of an intense political season, the Center for Human Security hopes to leverage frequent and deep conversations on topics of national interest with local import to prepare our community for the challenges we face today... and may face in the future.
